

Camera Bartolotta

Camera Chatham Bartolotta is Owner/Producer, Dolce Productions, LLC, creating and producing programming for television and the internet. Ms. Bartolotta's hometown is Los Angeles, California, and has been in the Performing Arts Industry since 1984 with a long list of TV and film credits. She and her late husband, Bruce Bartolotta, founded Duke of Oil in 1988, the first full-service quick lube in the Monongahela Valley.

Ms. Bartolotta has been a public speaker since 1996 as a certified Image Coach on the subject of personal presentation and is the Executive VIP with BeautiControl. In 2004, Camera founded Dolce Productions and is currently working on a live webcast cooking series, "Meet Me in the Kitchen", where viewers cook along with the chefs in real time. Ms. Bartolotta graduated from St. Mary's College in California with Bachelor of Science degrees in Business and Psychology. She is a member of the Screen Actors Guild, Entertainment Media Producers & Professionals and AFTRA. She is also the Vice President of the Western Pennsylvania Cultural Center, and advocate for the Lymphoma and Leukemia Society, American Heart Association and Relay for Life.

To support Camera in her fundraising efforts visit:

<http://www.firstgiving.com/fundraiser/camerabartolotta/2011facescampaign>